

Mihail I. Naidenov,
Psychologist, Institute of Reflective Investigation &
Specialization, Zaporohzie, Ukraine

ABOUT THE PROBLEM OF SUBJECT OF GROUP REFLECTION

In accordance with our introduction, the notion "group reflection" is a complex structural-dynamic system directed to the solution of problemity & conflictivity which is specific for creativity. Group reflection is realized through the mechanism of interaction, mutual understanding, mutual agreebility & group forms of intellectual and personal reflection.

It is suggested that the subject of group reflection can be both individual partners in their coactivity concerning some creative problems, and collectiv-distributed subject of cocreativity. And the transpassing borders of the two kinds of subjectivity need special investigation.

Our experimental reseach showed that separate features and interrelations of two types of subjectivity is revealed in the following positions:

a) "collectivistic- dissolving" and b) "separateness, openness of self/ego" position (from the viewpoint of collective-distributed subject these two extremes are presented as "homoginity" and "cristalizity" of subject-group). We use this result as a conceptual thesis in the organisation of reflective creative workshop.