

Specialization of reflective training-practical work for the competitive selections

Naidenov M.

I. General thesise's: 1. The reflective training-practical work is a training system used the group reflection mechanism as the psychological mechanism of diagnostics and intervention. 2. The directions of its usage are following: a) facilitation of innovative process; b) training for the persons and organizations; c) exact forecast about required person's and group psychological characteristics. II. Differences: · motivation for participation; · training rules and procedures; · subjective new growths. III. Specific result and satisfaction by result of all interested in it subjects: customer, participant, trainer. IY. Qualitative and quantitative indices of the exact modelling forecast.